

WHAT IS A POLLINATOR SANCTUARY?

Think of a pollinator sanctuary as a tiny nature city.

A safe, spray-free place where pollinators can:

- Find food
- Stop for a drink
- Shelter from the elements
- Raise the next generation

“What you do makes a difference, and you have to decide what kind of difference
you want to make.”
— JANE GOODALL

Why does this matter?

Pollinators are in trouble.

Small creatures. - Big responsibility.

Thanks to habitat loss, chemical sprays and pesticides (yes, we're looking at you, Glyphosate), many of these vital wee creatures are disappearing fast.

And that's a problem because without pollinators, our food system starts to wobble.

The Good News? We can all help.

A FLOWER IS MADE UP OF MANY PETALS

Here at Flur, we believe small things can make a big difference, especially when it comes to bees and pollinators.

A Flur Star Sanctuary is a spray-free space that helps bees, butterflies, hoverflies and other pollinators thrive. Whether it's a balcony garden, a school plot, a few raised beds, or a wild meadow, every space helps create a healthier world for pollinators and people too.

Together, these sanctuaries form pollinator highways: a growing network of safe, spray-free nature cities where pollinators can rest, refuel, and continue their important work.

Our goal is to grow 10,000 Spray-free Sanctuaries across NZ within 10 years.

*What does spray-free mean?

Spray-free means avoiding pesticides, herbicides, and other garden chemicals that can harm pollinators and biodiversity.
